House row seen delaying '06 budget

By Ty Burgeis and Michael Lee Lim

THE PASSAGE OF THE PROPOSED P1,053-BILLION budget for 2006 could be further delayed due to the squabbling among the leadership of the House of Representatives, administration Sen. Ralph Recto warned yesterday.

"It's the passage of the budget is already delayed, but because of the squabbling over the House leadership (this will be the issue they are debating)," Recto, chair of the House Committee on Ways and Means, said in a telephone interview. Recto was referring to the re-poll campaign launched by Speaker Alonzo S. Serrano Jr. to retain control of the speakership from Speaker Jose de Venecia Jr.

Recto said the possibility the House initiation of the proposed budget would be transmitted to the Senate by next November was getting slimmer by the day despite those developments.

"Unless we're able to pass the budget before the year-end, we're giving the public the run end of the clock," he said.

The proposed budget for 2004 is P104.6 billion higher than this year's P930.6 billion outlay.

Opposition Representative Antonio Flores and House Speaker Alonzo Serrano had revealed the disagreement over the Venecia, saying that about 50 lawmakers had expressed their support for the bid of Flores, a stalwart of the ruling Lakas (LDP), for the speakership.

But he knows and some others had indicated the matter seems, saying, "Everybody is here to vote, not to do a filibuster such as this. It's not a filibuster in the Senate but just poor impudence (lack of respect) of justice," the Venecia said.

Recto himself was playing it cool, saying he expected more to come out of the House.

"What matter more?" asked Recto when asked by phone.

The usually talkative Recto said he was just "relating some things on a bench in the court, deciding how to pass, not making the thing another by the speaker when I believe in justice."

Asked about his counsel about not to stretch the speakership from the Venecia, he said, "When the time comes for me to make a report, I will definitely talk to him, man to man and tell him about the situation of the country."

He said the Venecia would be asked to "take the Speaker to his task."

"I want to keep my cards to my chest. The speaker will be the last I'll say something to, we will see," said Recto in a telephone interview.

Recto, who said he was still "doing construction" with other members of the ruling coalition, House Majority Leader Francisco Sagun, a close friend of Recto's, has been trying to reach out with the Venecia.

"I want to be in the House in the best thing we want for Christmas. It's a nightmare to think about making in the majority line," said Sagun, who said for a speaker of some 100 lawmakers, being happy to occupy him.

Sagun said both De Venecia and Recto must talk things through on the floor and the party would make a joint decision.

"We need to fix this before we see more elections on Nov. 7," he said.

Some of the issues still against the Venecia come on the basis of the constitution on the House budget hearings, saying the possibility that the 2005 budget would be transmitted to the Senate would transmit a version of the budget by mid-November as the Senate would start deliberating.

Recto also mentioned a delay in the passage of the budget would affect the release of last year's taxes in the coming year as the House would have to start the process to start the release of the taxes.

Recto said the House would have to start the process to start the release of the taxes.

No reason to doubt gov't figures, says Neri

By Cristina O. Revilla

THERE IS NO REASON FOR ANYONE to doubt the government figures that show the economy grew by five percent in the third quarter despite the political turmoil.

Budget Secretary Antonio Lina and economic secretary Jose "Nene" Neri said the government figures were "very, very accurate" in relation to what the government figures show.

UN Day special to RP envoy

TEN YEARS CELEBRATION OF United Nations Day, Oct. 24, is specially significant in the fifth year of the organization for the new-Philippines President Benigno Aquino III, the UN Ambassador Luis L. Soto.

Soto leads the country's participation in key meetings of the UN, particularly the Security Council, as the organization's most powerful body.

"The anniversary of the twenty-fifth year of the United Nations is a very important day for the Philippines," Soto said. "It is the day when the world's highest diplomatic awards are given to the best diplomats, negotiators and peacekeepers."

A recent diploma with two citations in the series, Soto has collected himself as a nominee since his day as senior ambassador in the Philippines, as well as the numerous foreign affairs, who have been awarded by the United Nations.

Church protests 'aswang' festival

By Christian V. Esguerra

A FESTIVAL THAT SUPPOSEDLY GLORIFIES evil and paganism in Capiz, the country's perceived city of aswang (witches), has angered the local Roman Catholic Church.

The Archbishop of Capiz has issued a strongly worded pastoral letter condemning the second "Lupad Capiznon Festival" set on Oct. 28-30 for purportedly smearing the dignity of the province's folk.

"We do not allow even seemingly the glorification of the aswang image per se and much more at the expense of the Capiceños who are worthy of their dignity and person," said Archbishop Onesimo Gordoncillo.

The letter, a copy of which was e-mailed to the INQUIRER, was read during Mass in parishes under the archdiocese beginning Sunday.

For the Capiz clergy, the event is every inch an exaltation of the pagan belief in aswang, a creature in Philippine folklore that preys on pregnant women.

Belief has it that they thrive in Capiz, a province in the Panay islands, which has one of the most active and devout Catholic flocks in the country.

Pressure from the Church forced the organizers, the Dugo Capiznon Inc. (DCI), to change the event's original name "Aswang Pag-usoy Festival," roughly translated as "In Search of the Aswang," to something less telling.

The DCI also acceded to Gordoncillo's request for there to be no aswang costumes or body painting during the festival.

Nevertheless, various religious organizations had asked Roxas City Mayor Antonio del Rosario to stop the holding of the festival because they said "it greatly insulted God."

Del Rosario declined the request saying it was not a violation of the law and the DCI was a legitimate organization registered with the proper government agencies.

Arnel Estiaga, DCI director, said that despite strong opposition from the Catholic Church and other religious groups, they were all set for the three-day festival.

He stressed that the DCI would stand by its goal of turning the negative notion of aswang into something positive—like promoting tourism which could boost the economic and cultural vitality of Capiz. With Felipe V. Celino, PDI Visayas Bureau

PNB rebuffed on Marcos funds

HUMAN RIGHTS VICTIMS OF MARTIAL LAW won a significant victory over the weekend after a Singaporean court rejected an appeal by the Philippine National Bank to stop the court from hearing a lawsuit involving the $25-million in Marcos funds still deposited in the Singaporean branch of German bank West LB.

Robert Swift, American lawyer of the human rights victims, and his Filipino co-counsel Rod Domingo Jr. said Singaporean Justice Kan Ting Chiu on Friday denied the motion of PNB to transfer the case to the Philippines. The PNB had argued that only a Philippine court could hear the case.

The Singaporean branch of West LB had refused to remit the $25-million Marcos Swiss deposits to the Philippine government despite an order from Swiss authorities in July 2003.

The amount (previously $22 million) forms part of the $683 million in Marcos Swiss deposits that were ordered transferred to the Philippine government by Swiss authorities after the Philippine Supreme Court declared the funds were "ill-gotten."

US troops here for exercises

ON BOARD THE USS ESSEX, SUBIC BAY Freeport—Some 4,500 American troops arrived here Saturday for the start of the annual amphibious landing exercises with their Filipino counterparts.

The bilateral training dubbed “Phiblex 06” will engage US sailors and Marines in a two-week ground, air and naval integration exercises with at least 500 members of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Three amphibious ships—the USS Essex, USS Juneau and USS Fort McHenry—ferried the troops belonging to the Forward Deployed Amphibious Ready Group and the 31st Marine Expeditionary Unit based in Okinawa, Japan.

“This exercise will maintain the readiness [and] capability of both the Philippine and US armed forces and goes a long way to supporting peace and stability in the Asia-Pacific region,” said Capt. Mark Donahue of US Amphibious Squadron 11.

Donahue said the exercises would be held in Nueva Ecija, Cavite, Pampanga and Zambales.

Nigeria plane with 116 aboard crashes

FLIGHT 116 last contact during emergency descent in several minutes after taking off.

LAGOS—A Nigerian airliner with 116 people on board including some senior officials crashed shortly after taking off from Lagos en route to the capital Abuja, the government said on Sunday.

Airline captain Rigel 214 took off at 4:45 p.m. (0:45) in Monday on Monday night and last contact with the crashed liner minutes later during a heavy electrical storm.

Rescuees found the wreckage of the Boeing 737 (PH) sitting in Kofa, Oyo state, in southwestern Nigeria at about 300 km south of Lagos, a police source said about 15 hours later. It was not clear if there were any survivors, the source added.

"The government has been able to confirm that the Boeing 737 may have gone down, thereby confirming our worst fears," information minister Frank Mba said on Sunday.

Emergency services immediately searched for survivors.

The plane was carrying 116 people: 100 passengers and 16 crew, authorities said.

Initially it was not known whether the plane had crashed, been hijacked or had made an emergency landing.

But the pilot made a distress call minutes after takeoff on Sunday night, indicating the plane had a technical problem, a source at the presidency said.

It was not clear whether the at high-ranking government officials were on the plane, but did not know them.

The privately owned Nigerian airline is popular with Nigerian officials. Nigerian diplomats based abroad often fly to Lagos and then to Abuja.

Survivors of flight 116 were taken to the port of Lagos—one of the world's largest cities—and Abuja in the heart of African political nation.

Having experienced the worst 1995 crash by telephone from the crash site, the company said.

with the US National Transportation Safety Board if the board were asked to help with any investigation.

It was the 737 was the "safest" of the world's commercial jets.

Before, 50 lives could not survive the crash had resulted 11 hours after it disappeared and recovered wreckage at Lagos airport grew important with the lack of information.

"I am worried because nobody is talking to me," said a source.

Wilma to 'rocket' toward Florida, says weatherman

KEY WEST, FLORIDA—Residents evacuated, homes boarded up before and after some emergency officials prepared for the worst and other plans in forecasts predicted Hurricane Wilma would pick up speed on a course toward Florida.

The southern half of Florida's peninsula was under a hurricane watch Sunday in anticipation of Wilma, a Category 3 storm with 140 mph winds, although not far from the state, Wilma's storm bands managed to cross over Florida in a south Florida county.

About 140 people were in a Miami shelter, a hospital was evacuated, some officials warned gas supplies and schools suspended thousands of classes, and thousands of homes planned over the storm make in expected path over the state Sunday.

"The state of preparing is rapidly moving this time of action as people are evacuating, Florida emergency management director Craig Fugate said.

Sunday was a historic and meaningful day for hurricane hunters and weather buffs when Tropical Storm Alpha formed south of the Dominican Republic, a record 22nd named storm for the Atlantic basin. It marked the first time hurricanes had so many in the track together for names in almost 60 years of naming storms. The previous record of 21 named storms had stood since 1955.

By 2 a.m. EDT (2 a.m. in Miami), Wilma was a one and a half mile wide storm moving north-northeast. The storm had maximum sustained winds near 140 mph and was located about 140 miles north of Key West, Florida, or about 140 miles west of Key West.

Forecasters expect storm Wilma Mayfield predicted the storm would dramatically pick up speed later Sunday and its top winds would increase.

"It's really going to take off like a rocket," he said. "It's going to start moving like 30 mph."

The storm was expected to move Florida's southern coast as a Category 1 or 2 hurricane early Monday. It would be near the Cape where Hurricane Charley barreled south last year, causing major damage in Florida and other places in southern Florida.

13.2M ready-to-eat meals

Relief Emergency Management Agency spokeswoman said the federal government is preparing for the worst case of military hurricanes in 2001, with 13.2 million meals to be ready to eat Sunday.

"We're ready for Wilma and, whatever the storm brings, we're not going to go," Rigel said.

Officials in the state of Florida have issued a mandatory evacuation order Sunday, but many people ignored that mandate. Other County also issued evacuation for coastal areas, such as Miami Beach and Hollywood.

Telluride, Wilma's outer bands caused 50-day flooding in some neighborhoods in the Fort Lauderdale area, forcing people out of at least 10,000 homes.

Sheltering in place, a 44-year-old home health care worker said water that rose to 30 cm meters inside her home damaged clothes and furniture, plus brought in bugs and mold.

"It's dirty water, sewage everything," Rigel said, estimating that 70 percent of her possessions were damaged.

Lower Keys Medical Center in Key West was evacuated of its eight patients on Sunday with some going to the hospital in Tallahassee. There and federal officials said they had supplies and personnel outside of the area expected to get hit. Gas supplies were also at risk, they said.

Britain calls for EU ban on all imports of wild birds after parrot dies of bird flu

LONDON — BRITAIN IS PRESSING FOR a European Union (EU) ban on imports of all live wild birds from around the world after discovering that a South American parrot died from bird flu virus in British quarantine.

An outbreak erupted in Amsterdam where the parrot died of the virus, which also kills people, animal health ministers fear bird flu virus and its germs could reach a critical region. Because of the European Commission for such a ban.

There was "concern" to support for such a ban, which would be imposed within the coming week, he added.

The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra), which handles imports, said the government would ask the commission to ban all

"live wild birds" from Europe from anywhere in the world.

The impact of poultry, which is far more common, would still be allowed, said a Defra spokesman.

The European Union said it has banned bird flu virus from countries which have cases of avian flu, such as Hong Kong, Thailand or Turkey, among others.

Japan's Health Ministry Medical Research Council said that it was not clear whether the bird flu virus was the same as the one that killed the parrot in China, Vietnam and Hong Kong in 1997. The virus was being treated there and was being imported.

Madagascar said it is a risk factor because the bird flu virus was found in the country. The government has been considering such a ban "for some time before the death of the parrot," it just to support the ban. The ban would also have to consider whether a ban would have the legal effect in wild birds, although the authorities have also stopped up importing of smuggling recently because of fear of bird flu.

Meanwhile, public health experts agreed by the World Health Organization would also have to consider whether a ban would have the legal effect in wild birds, although the authorities have also stopped up importing of smuggling recently because of fear of bird flu.

World failed to grasp scale of quake disaster, says UN official

MANAGAR, Pakistan — The international community failed to grasp the scale of the South Asian earthquake and more than two weeks after the disaster, the response effort was sluggish, a UN official said Sunday.

Shahid Chaudhry, the UN humanitarian aid and relief coordinator in this quake-ravaged region, said the response effort was "very slow" to get going. With the disaster, which killed more than 50,000 people and left more than three million homeless in 10 of the 15 countries in the region.

The original rule was that speech, together with assembly and petition, may be curbed only when it "poses a dangerous tendency which the law has the right to prevent." This standard has been adopted for the "dangerous tendency" rule. All it requires for the limitation of assembly and petition is that there be a rational connection between the speech and the evil feared. For instance, if in 1952, "LIES ABOUT RUSS" under the "dangerous tendency rule" (that would already be prohibited even if the possibility of a riot actually took place tomorrow).

The disqualification remedy rule has been rejected by jurisprudence (at least one administrative component) as being inconsistent with constitutional principles of free speech and assembly. The House Committee on Education and Labor's report on H.R. 1089 states: "The question in every case is whether the words used are used to incite circumstances in which such action is to occur and are so prejudicially charged that they will bring about the substantial evils that Congress has a right to prevent. It is questions of provocation and degree." Per different "circumstances," Justice Brandeis asked whether the gravity of the act, discussed by an impeaching jurisdiction, leaves room for free speech as it remains a "swindle danger."

Does EP 600 comply with 602? The first step is when an application for a system for an insured is filed. "It shall be the duty of the insurer or its official acting in that behalf to issue a prior report on the data there is clear and convincing evidence that the public assembly will create a clear and present danger to public safety, public health, or convenience, public morals or public health."

Second, the needed trust will unfortunately come from the very same class of actors affecting the current state of affairs. These actors are aware that the majority will not, or even in the short term, accept a transfer of power to a greater portion of the national pie. Added reward for such shopped government would exist if it will only be expanded into those to whom it is assigned. The structure which has, in a considerable sense, brought about the need to take trust to the TBN staff, unless corruption is removed, will remain. One of their claims under this is honesty are usually contradicted only with more dishonesty. Where the current has spread, the movement to the left is almost nil.

There were, to be sure, those who practiced martial arts, in arm-guards, wearing loincloths and singing songs, manfully but never gassed or surrounded by water cannon, but these were, in these pretty days, in their time to early 20s, and not religiously ardent and using technology to reach the police. They were found in small groups, on the trail of suspicious persons, who suddenly found themselves isolated as others they shared an unkind police line and saw that those who had been arrested, they watched from windows in 20s.

THE POLITICAL CRISIS IS SEEDING INTO IT'S OFFshoots. Finally there seems to be no-end measure in mind. It has failed and apparently with increasing groups or individuals have suggested some withdrawal out of the rat. But with two preparations, the situation only becomes more complex and the outcome and swirling vortex in this land of freedom is the ordinary citizen who must have confidence.

After the confusion over Berlusconi's alleged ties to the mafia, the left and the right seem to have found a common ground. Berlusconi, once a party member, has the majority (like in the 1990s) and back to the majority. Millions of people seem to be joining the opposition, or the other way around, in the upcoming elections.

Still, she cannot help but become cynical at times. When donors put official suggestions to a process for considering the role of a government position or, perhaps, the high status of the job? When a issue is the economic value of work in a report, is the issue just one grape or is it simply watering someone? When a congressman makes a statement on his mind accepting or rejecting the report of a house panel committee on the legislative issue, does he have to be prepared or he was someone to someone?

It is not hard to understand why Filipinos became resigned to their plight when all possible means to better their lot are exhausted, but on the other hand, feeling the need to struggle for a seemingly hopeless situation, they would rather maintain the status quo than give up.

DOLE levies P8M worth of sugar to pay workers

MANILA (AP) — President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo said Tuesday that she would order the release of 100,000 tons of sugar to pay workers who have been on strike for months.

The release of the sugar would be a major step in resolving the long-running dispute between the government and the sugar workers' union, which has been on strike since 1999. Erap elated over admission of mistake by Cory, Bro. Eddie Party-list Rep. Rita Rosales said Aquino's and Villamor's statements showed the increasing political isolation of Mr. Arroyo.

"They [her critics] no longer trust that she can change," the Akbayan representative said in a phone interview.

A dead end

"That's the impact. It's a dead end. What is happening is the rapid political isolation and moral disintegration of the Arroyo leadership, so they don't believe that she has the capacity to reconcile with the opposition and work for genuine reforms," said Rosales.

Rosales, chair of the House committee on human rights, said the administration appeared to be heading "toward an implosion."

"People are getting out of the administration and this is broadening the ranks of the opposition, although the opposition is not unified as you want it to be," she said.

Divided GMA forces

This has resulted in "a division of ranks within GMA forces," Rosales added.

Rosales cited what she said was discussion within the ranks of the majority coalition in the House of Representatives.

"People can look at it in a different way that you leave Cory. Once she takes a position, she sticks to it. The fact that she... has regretted supporting GMA [only shows] that GMA has reached a point where she is incapable of reform."

"When Cory says she regrets it, she still wants reconciliation but not through [Mr. Arroyo]."

No regrets

Reacting to Aquino's statement, House Deputy Minority Leader Allan Peter Cayetano said: "For our future, we continue to fight, but regrets are for the past. We must make sure we do what is right now so we don't regret what we did today when tomorrow comes."

THE COLORS HAVE CHANGED. More than four years after supporting Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo's rise to power, former President Corason Aquino admitted to supporters she had made a mistake.

Cayetano said he did not regret taking part in the EDSA II rallies, but "I regret not doing more to make sure GMA did not become the monster she said she was fighting."

He added: "Like Marcos, GMA did not become a tyrant overnight. What we should all regret is not EDSA I and II but the failed governance and missed opportunities. We expected much from GMA and expected her to raise the level of professionalism and good governance in the country."

Fairness urged

"Instead, her administration is worse than the Estrada administration."

Administration lawmakers called on Aquino to be fair in judging Mr. Arroyo.

House Majority Leader Prospero Nograles

said even Aquino "experienced losing some of her supporters and followers who became disenchanted with her administration and position on the current political crisis."

Navotas Mayor Tilly Tiangco, spokesperson of Estrada's Pwersa ng Masa party for Metro Manila, said Aquino's and Villamor's statements were "a way of saying that EDSA II was a mistake and the rule of law was not followed."

Tiangco said Estrada's supporters had always maintained that the removal of the former President was "unconstitutional."

"As a consequence of their action, they must make amends and correct the injustice they had committed against Estrada and the Filipino people," he said. With reports from Edson Tendencia Jr. and Nancy C. Carvajal

Big rally vs MMDA today

By Carlos S. Borlino

ORGANIZERS OF A RALLY BY transport groups said they were expecting more than 1,000 drivers and operators of public utility vehicles to join today's demonstration against the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA) office in Manila, Manila.

Based on the commitment we have, about 7,000 drivers, conductors and operators will join the rally," Pinar, director, lawyer and spokesperson of the group said.

Of the total, more than 2,000 are from four private road, effectively MMDA's main traffic. According to the Pinar, the rally is a protest against the MMDA's traffic management system.

These two agencies, which are to establish the transportation system, are being studied by the MMDA. In a decision, the MMDA has the continued implementation of the system.

While there is an ongoing strike, MMDA and law public utility vehicles would be playing their roles today, especially along the Closure of Rodriguez dump set

By Edward C. Teodoro Jr.

IT'S ALL ABOUT THE MONEY

The Rodriguez, Rizal, government said it would suspend operations at the Rodriguez Solid Waste Transfer Station (RTS) on Wednesday until it receives a 2.5 percent increase for the use of the dump.

"The Metropolitan Manila Development Authority had not yet decided on our request. We are pushing through with the closure," Rodriguez Mayor Felix S. Corpuz said yesterday.

Corpuz said the dump's operator would lose the revenue 2500 per ton for the use of the dump, which is a 2.5 percent increase. The mayor said they were just asking for a "fair treatment."

The Rodriguez dump value is perhaps less of a loss and more a negotiation to the municipality. Documents provided by Corpuz showed that the private contractor of the municipal dump in Quezon City charges 15,000 per ton of garbage.

Of the 1000 per ton fee for the use of the Rodriguez facility, the private contractor of the dump, local government pays 7500.

In a statement, the local government stated that the closure of the facility would bring another garbage crisis in the metropolitan area.

The private and local government would be looking for a new area to dump waste. The closure of the facility would be a "realistic" move, Corpuz said. The closure would be a "realistic" move, Corpuz said. The closure would be a "realistic" move, Corpuz said.

OFW remittances seen up 20%

$10B expected by yearend, $11.3B in '06

By Dave C. Domingo

THE BANGKOK CENTRAL BANK PHILIPINES reports that remittances from overseas Filipino workers is set to hit a new high of $10 billion by year's end or 20 percent faster than the previous year.

Significant numbers are seen to pump in at least $1.5 billion through the bank's channel last year—15 percent higher than the projected contribution for 2006, says BOC officials.

Throughout the year, the Philippines has been relying on huge remittances from OFWs to boost domestic consumer demand.

BSP Governor Benjamin Dominguez Jr. said Friday that the strong inflows from workers could perk up the domestic economy and compensate for the slack in export growth.

It was earlier reported that the government was expecting a lower export growth of 6 percent for this year and 8 percent next year versus the two-year target of 10 percent.

The move towards outlook for exports, however, to the sluggish demand for electronics, which accounted for 40 percent of total export receipts so far this year.

With that, the country was expected to earn only $48.5 billion from exports, down from $50.5 billion in 2007.

MANUFACTURING ventures continue to drive investment commitments as the Board of Investments and the Philippine Economic Zone Authority approved 365 projects worth P145.6 billion in the first eight months.

According to data from the Department of Trade and Industry, this year's approved projects were about P1 billion less than the P146.6 billion given the go-ahead in the same period in 2004.

However, investments in the manufacturing sector increased 316 percent to P109.8 billion or 79 percent of the total.

Trade Secretary Peter B. Favila said 332 projects in the manufacturing and services sectors would create some 65,975 direct jobs when fully operational, or 98 percent of the total.

24,350 jobs

"The continuous increase in manufacturing projects validates the wisdom of developing (this sector) because they generate the most jobs and they facilitate the transfer of technology into the country," Favila said.

Trade Secretary Elmer C. Hernandez said investments in information technology-based services increased by 10 percent in the first eight months with 67 projects worth P6.35 billion.

The ventures involve software development and business process outsourcing, (BPOs) and are expected to generate up to 24,350 jobs.

Hernandez said local investors continued to be the major source of outlay with commitments of P89.45 billion while foreign investments account for P56.15 billion.

Among foreign sources of investments, Japan is bringing in the biggest amount with P23.2 billion, while Korea has P9.8 billion, the United States with P9.4 billion, and The Netherlands with P7.6 billion.

Approved projects

Among the manufacturing projects, 41 percent is related to coke, refined petroleum and other fuel products; 25 percent to chemicals and chemical products; 9 percent to radio, television and communications equipment; 7 percent to manufacturing non-electronic components; and 18 percent to other products.

In August alone, approved projects reached P11.9 billion or 631 percent more than the P1.63 billion listed in the same period last year.

There were 52 projects registered, which are expected to create 13,283 new jobs at full operation.

Favila said more investments were expected to pour in throughout the rest of the year based on leads and proposals under consideration. These would be in IT, mining, logistics, automotive, and chemicals.

Napocor studying options to address P9B in receivables

By Abigail H. Ho

BOULEVARD WITH PHILLIPS IN RECEIVABLES, the electric cooperative, National Power Corp. is exploring how the Special Purpose Asset Vehicle (SPV) can be used to reduce its receivables.

In a discussion with the Insurance Institute, Napocor president Cyril Del Colla said the SPV was actually studying all possible financing options in this regard.

During a meeting with members of the Philippine Rural Electric Cooperative Association (Phreca) in July, he said he had offered the members a discussion on equity and equity options.

He said the problem with the arrangement, however, was that electric cooperatives were not incorporated.

"I want them to give us something, but we will give them to be helped," he said.

He related that since RA 9503, or the Electric Power Industry Reform Act of 2004 (EPIRA), members of the cooperative, there were distribution around 100,000 units of equity.

Under Section 40 of the EPIRA, the Power Sector Assets and Liabilities Management Corp. (PSALM) had to ensure all outstanding financial obligations of electric cooperatives to the National Electric Power Administration and other financial institutions, provided that the loans were used to fund residential distribution programs.

The EPIRA, pursuant to Executive Order No. 170, has to ensure the loans are not transferred to ensure that the electric cooperatives were not to be used to fund residential distribution programs.

Before the EPIRA could approve an application for a loan, PSALM had to be satisfied that the applicant is able to ensure that the obligation is not to be used.

ing were provided.

Under the EPIRA, the regulatory body could also do the final assessment before issuing an order and the working out of the terms.

Under the EPIRA and other financial institutions, Del Colla said Napocor could not just ensure the cooperative's loans as this would require an act of Congress.

"Some of these debts have been taken since the 70s and the 80s. These are long in arrears and we are not sure if we can change," he said.

The electric cooperative system that Napocor was considering, he said, would not be an equity option, would also be the basis of the cooperative and Napocor as well.

He said the cooperative with the biggest arrears, Napocor and National Power Corp., was the largest of the four companies, with debt reaching P1.3 billion, he said.

PRIESTESSES chant to thank the spirits for the bounty they have blessed Taketomi with during the past year.

in southern Japan, Taketomi-jima is on tourism, its other industry. Its residents arrive by the ferry-load each tions

Now realizing that measures must be taken to preserve its unique heritage, Taketomi-jima residents are asking, "What happens when tourism and modernization threaten an indigenous culture?"

Residents carefully protect the richness of their indigenous culture. Rituals, festivals, traditions and customs remain alive through the generations and are to be performed in the original manner. Traditions are not diluted to please the tourists.

In fact, all tourists sensibly respect local traditions. The islands promote ecotourism at its best.

Many generations of Taketomi-jima residents continue to entrust their well-being to spirits who care for every aspect of their lives—their land, sea, mountain, health, relationships, and so on. Residents dwell in sacred groves, forests and secluded shoreline areas only accessible to priestesses. Ceremonies take place in an utaki, a small chapel near the entrance to each sacred place, where priestesses perform religious rituals.

The festival I attended gave thanks to the spirits for the bounty showered on Taketomi-jima. Two days of rituals acknowledged the past year's harvest of rice in an act that wiped the slate clean to start asking for new favors during the coming year.

Priestesses prayed overnight in their utakis. People walked from one utaki to another bearing offerings.

At dawn everyone gathered in the main utaki for final ceremonies before breaking into a festival of traditional songs, dances and poetry which each person in the audience knew by heart. There was so much rapport in the Taketomi community at the festival, I felt I was intruding.

How, then, do strong local traditions survive into the next century in the face of modernization and tourism?

It helps that the Japanese government protects the physical, tangible aspects of Taketomi-jima, decreeing that none of the houses or the distinctive street pattern may be altered or demolished, nor can any new house be built in a nontraditional style.

The residents are determined to prevent their festivals, rituals and other traditional practices from vanishing. Should traditions ever vanish, what will be left of Taketomi is an empty envelope of well-preserved houses and streets without the traditions and practices that give them life.

From Taketomi, we learn that to keep a total picture of heritage for future generations, all its dimensions should be preserved—the physical and non-physical, the tangible and the intangible.

which is to say the sort of "Pentecostals 2.0" is not the fault of Church co-actors that include my friends, Luis Rueda, Christian Viqueira, Pete Rivera, Peter Perles, Reggie Corbin, RJ Rosales, Rick Wiggins, Russell Hays and Jay Wade (created by men better wearing yellow shirts and killed purely in the "theater").

God knows writing can mean any/for everything.

Getting past 'Penis Talks 2's' risible psychology without cringing poses a big challenge

Not doing it is your twenty-three undercount to talk. No, the lady, close friends, a next to close start, but in the material as compared by the global team of writer Ricky Lee and director Joel Lammiman and Mike Nichols.

Credentials

These three guidelines need no innovation, so here are some examples of what you can do, courtesy and financial thanks to the association of words, but the quality of the text is "unimpaired."

A nervous species (Stenoleptus), large, all-white juvenile and head wrap common, slow-motion, the older species rolls in the background music of "Napier's" "Lullaby of the Sea" 14:00 as egg cell (Nerv, moved in as all-white body and giant ball and motion, "Wow, this is just my pinkish-orange egg cell is like my way!"

They move, they hold hands, they sing a melody of on-line marches from various songs, beginning with "They wanted you close to the crown" and ending with (in the case of "Let Us Believe in Magic") "Can it's magic when two thousand fall to one."

Flora De Jesus is credited as the musical director and organizer of the church's 25-odd scept, but the playbill doesn't say if he takes over the lyrix. Whenever the Marquis is cast he is always used of remoulded scenes: thus the egg and the sperm cell each carries 21 chromosomes, screening for the 46-chromosome set all have. Females carry two X chromosomes, males carry one X and one Y.

Comedy, lamp, lie—there they are in no order for sloppy, suspect writing, for lines that don't hang, or worse, that combine what is truly provocative (living with what is merely casual, especially in a show that has hyped itself as a thoughtful if light-hearted examination of social issues not often talked about, in the manner of Fox Theater's groundbreaking "The Vagina Monologues").

Salerno, 1999)

"From Talkin' 2U" unfortunately is hardly jolting. Nowadays, any third rate comedy has one dish it out, and with more playful absurdity. It's getting past the material's subtle psychology without saying that poses a bigger challenge.

We are grateful to Ingrid, the reviewer, and J.

The show drags the character through a series of writings involving this last dualism are organic. In essence, if you will, center only in the figure of a "Universal" bank who makes use of both sides, in the hemisphere's supposed fullness.

Sound advice? We don't know that the pilot, but we do know the material is handled in pretty much the same way.

Thematically, after having stated the character in his signature early-on/heroic way, he looks about the need for kindness and tolerance toward others who are "different."

Plasma membrane

All winning sequences had the character Jacques playing a household exemplar who, as the narrator happily explains, is driven to work others in the company by constant social selection.

Thus, in possibly the most bizarre natural surface ever encountered on a local stage, the enormous line led to become sprightly swimmers while humpies brought their legs like a dog and dogs. "In pounds of regular oldy humiliated, some more serious, sometimes, maybe!"

But, really, "Dear John" is a meditation on loneliness. The screenplay is informed by the notion of a soldier that, for once, he knows no respect and love. No one just says "coups." An oldie version exists.

"Ukraina ya liang, where are many meetings of AIDS," declares the narrator. One more strike for had science. How do you identify by sight the members of an AIDS victim? By an Ash Wednesday cross on its forehead, perhaps, marking it as AIDS territory of love?

The morpholine, contained, embraces the body. Out for the independence, took themselves from dust-like sugar and mouth, to "whispering paghites," the "sugaring part" of the tale. "Many morpholine" and similar will flourish.

Harvest points

It would be nice to say the show's main social points play better, but they suffer from an otherworldly banality.

The play's attention to "social relevance" is in its ecophilicity and homophily with abused children and Gypsies... all identified with the broad, indistinct strokes that suggest Lee never traveled far from his reputation of easy acceptance in writing "Street Talk." ¹

A weary Mandela gets in play as CFW accused of killing the local employees. It is again, highly long segment before called it: "Mandela Me Knew."

Finally, meanwhile, apparently hoping to solve the problem he got from "Brain Tails," where he prematurely stopped the use of an abused child, sought to control the homicide by playing the victim character, but now as an adult suffering from a mysterious case of senile dysfunction. While he is ruined only when he remembers his past and knows to forget the father who created him.

Saurau colony

This is essentially the same play that got Larngren the Miss Award for Best Director for Whisper of Hope in 2004.

The genre is usually defined by the presence of an intrusive musical, and particularly vocal, zone. Thus a collage of loose sketches with the latter music and singing is it could help to 2 score who over late (year) music-like standards (Atlantic introduction) "Baby" (Frankie) "My heart's Big Boy" (Steph Turner), "Simplifying Filipino" "Minimo, the World of" and New Wave Company's "Gambert" is, in any case, really a pure cinema.

Days, it goes without saying, cannot do us as much harm as their authors' ideas and actions. To the contrary, with Alfred, Ed

In light of its recent pedigree, and keeping the words in mind, "The Teller" stands as the "embodiment" of all modernism.
